It had been six months since her wedding and Julie hadn't seen her friends in all that time. So when they met for a night on the town, discussion inevitably turned to the more passionate side of her marriage.

'What's he like in the bedroom?' asked Mary.

'Great.' She replied. 'And in the bathroom too.'

The girls squirmed with excitement. With empty glasses in hand they were eager for more juicy revelations.

'He was wonderful in the hall and in the lounge as well.' Continued Julie, and the girls couldn't get enough of the saucy gossip.

Then Julie said, 'Yes he's only got to do the kitchen and the decorating will be finished.'
